Rhino Conservation in South Africa

The world-renowned Kruger National Park offers a wildlife experience that ranks with the best in Africa. Sadly, the wildlife here faces constant attack from poachers and therefore requires teams of counter-poaching units to patrol and protect the vast area from such threats.

Ticking off the Big Five is part of the experience but the main focus is to allow wildlife-lovers the chance to gain a hands-on experience of conservation. You also get a chance to give back. Your contribution to the tour enables further conservation efforts throughout the region.

Embark on an 8 day South African safari experience that directly gives back to wildlife conservation and the local communities.

You will be hosted by an elite member of the Dyck Advisory Group Conservation Trust (DAGCT) Counter Poaching Team, who will guide you through some hands-on conservation activities that can only be experienced with Where Wild Things Roam Travel.

The DAGCT Counter Poaching Team prides its self by operating to neutralise poaching activity and ensure the safety of today's endangered and targeted wildlife.
